Week reported middling cotton in New York at 13;c; on Monday it advanced to 13 7-16c, fell back on Tuesday to 13;c. OUR REVIEW of the cotton market last 13 7-16c, fell back on Tuesday to 134c, Fair. and on Wednesday to 13te. New Orleans at our best review quoted 1245, and 3100 hal 5. Memphis quoted 12jc, advanced on 14jc. Monday to 12 c, and fell on Friday to cline of to in New York, but as the week ends the prospect is not as cheerful as this fact would intimate. The eastern Stock ly under consumption—that is, a large | s esmers, 1440. portion of those who Lave been consumes of cetton goods, owing to the misery of the times, cannot obtain as much of meant to cure. It is to the public interest that all citizens should be consumers. The last wee ly report of the New York Bulletin reported a spiritless market. The report of the Agricultural bureau indicating a total crop of less than four millions of bales for the season had a reviving effect. Those looking for a rise eslaulated upon the comparatively low ruling rates and the prospect that such must ultimately attract more general consumptive attention, and also upon a shorter supply of cotton than now admitted as likely; while on the other hand the claim is for full if not surplus crop, the slow call thus far from customers, the same sort of condition of the goods market, and the dull movement of all classes of merchandise, with accumulating evidences that buyers can only be attracted by easy terms. The increasing shipments of American cotton goods to European outlets has occasioned some remark, but seems to exercise no decided influence on material. In Memphis the demand has been moderate, and the stock of cotten on hand has increased. The weather has been dark and gloomy with occasional rains, and the proportion of inferior cotton is increasing in consequence. Dusty cotton meets with neglect; there is some den and for bright stains; the principal inquiry, however, has been for w middling and above, grades above m ddling hording their price well. The fuliness of receipts, as compared with last year, has had a continued depressing effect upon prices, and the last week the depression was decreased by difficulties in Europe, growing out of complica-tions about Turkey, and the export demand in our market was sensibly affected, as the decrease of sales for export at the latter part of the week clearly de-We observe that the Vicksburg Heraid complains as follows: "The present low prices are a source of much iscouragement to the producers, who have to pay about one-third of the value of a bale of cotton for its being picked. This fact may result in considerable cotton being left ungathered. So far this season about 25,000 bales of cotton have been reshipped at this point, which gives Vicksburg no revenue! Shreveport reports a receipt of 19,600 tales this year, against 13,100 at the same time last season. Sea island cotton is reported in good demand at Charleston, where it ngs 35/a400 a pound for Carolina, and Receipts in Memphis during the week

Total shipments since September 1st are 123,266 bales, against 88 051 bales the same time last year, an increase of 35 215 bales. THE GENERAL MARKET has been less busy during the week than is usual at the approach of December; but although the general expenditure appears to be re-stricted, we learn from the banks and others, that the farmers are paying their debts and so greatly improving their commercial position. Apples are in steady but not active demand at the prices of a week ago; the arrival of a couple of flatboat loads has incressed the stock. Potatoes are objects of much attention, and holders are generally discontented with the low prices, which are the consequence of the large supply. Round lots of Illinois peachblows have sold at $1 25@1 35 a barrel, according to condition and quality; Michigan and Iowa bring $1 50 for good quality early rose. Onions are quiet at from $1 50 to $1 75 for round lots. Cabbage is rare with a moderate i-quiry; only inferior in the market. Corn is very quiet with only a moderate stock on hand, round lots of both shelled and ear quoted 49e yesterday.

Outs—few transactions, small offerings, and limited demand. Bran is in moderate demand, the price has been falling during the week, with sales at $18 and $18 25. Hay is dull for the lower and medium grades; choice meets with a more ready sale. Butter is quiet, steady and unchanged in price. Baling stuffs we have been compelled all week to describe as too ir egular for quotations; the stock here is large and occas onally manufacturers inject new arrivals upon us; then comes the struggle of conflicting interests. Commeat, following corn, is lower, selling at $2.40 a barrel. Chickens are dull for young; fine and large tring up to $4.50. Cheese is a cause for grief; there is too much of it, and some it was bought chesp, but proves to be of inferior quality-prices are unfavora-bly affected in consequence. Coffee has been on the "downward grade" all week. The last coffee report of Moore & Co., of Rio de Janeiro, October 19th, says: "On the nineteenth and twentieth instant, dealers accepted the lowest figures, at which some 30,000 bags were purchased; or about one-half of the total sales of the fortnight. Immediately following the last named day, the news reached here that the Duich sale had gone off at oneand-a-half cents below valuations; this, added to the report of a decline in the United States markets, has entirely stopped business." Sugars and molasses show slightly lower figures. Coal oil continues steady at 182. Fresh Beef remains steady; sheep carcasses are higher; hoge are slightly lower. Eggs stiffen as the weather gets colder; the demand also improves. Flour remains low and unchanged; some lower quality is obtaining attention as the cold weather comes. Provisions have been on the failing scale generally during the week, but lard shows some improve-ment. The Chicago circular of Heness & Co., November 28th, says the better feeling in lard had culminated in au advance of 45c a barrel. Meats it re-ports easier, but the decline brought a THE COTTON MARKET Vesterday—

RIVER CHRONICLE.

Weather and Rivers. Weather and Rivers.

The past two days have been rainy, cold, and generally disagreeable. An almost unceasing rain fell all day Sunday and Sunday night, which promised yesterday morning to change off to a season of snow. The thermometer did not get down to the snow-hole, however, and up to nightfall last night a slow drizzling rain prevailed. Weather conjecturers are at their wits-end as to what will transpire in a weatheristical way during the next twenty-four hours. The news from the rivers everywhere is quite fayorable, except, perverywhere is quite fayorable, except, pereverywhere is quite fayorable, except per-haps. Arkansas, where no rise of striking im-portance has set in yet. The latest we have received is contained in the table and Associ-ated Press dispatches following here:
